CONTENT MANAGEMENT

About The Client

The Box Lane is a business that specializes in designing custom packaging for all kinds of products. They are always aiming to provide innovative, high-quality solutions to suit individual client needs. Looking beneath the surface of this competent organization, you will find various websites and social media pages that demonstrate their commitment to customer service excellence as well as their proud portfolio of creative projects.

Challenges

Our client needed assistance with developing custom CMS software to overcome their business problem of managing all of their websites and social media accounts from a single sign-on platform. We were able to provide the perfect solution which allowed them to manage any content changes, add a new page and post on any social media account right through the web application. With our help, they were easily able to streamline their processes and create a more user-friendly experience for both website visitors and administrators alike.

Solution

Throughout the development of our custom CMS software, we were able to create numerous components with ease. We incorporated social media API's integration to help drive content more easily, generated new HTML pages with precision, and auto uploaded them onto the cPanel for an easy deployment. Our team worked together to ensure the product was deployed quickly and efficiently. No element was left overlooked or forgotten during this project - everyone involved worked diligently to create a quality CMS software in a timely manner. We are proud of what we have created through this development process and are grateful for all of the hard work that went into making our product a success.

Results

Our client was pleased with the results of integrating our custom CMS software, as it allowed them to save both time and money. This in turn allowed the company’s management to focus on other tasks and objectives, thus providing a sense of relief that something difficult and tedious had been taken away from their workload. We are proud to have provided the fast and efficient solution to help the client maximize their efficiency without having to break their budget
